GERMAN SUCCESS CONTINUES SAYS BERLIN BULLETIN

Declare French and English Were Defeated at La Fere and Advance on Paris Keeps On

RUSSIANS HAVE BEEN CHECKED

Ridicule Stories that Czar's Forces Threaten the Forts Along the Vistula

CROWN PRINCE MEETING VICTORY

Stated that German Army Operating Across Border from Longwy Is Having Success

BERLIN, Via. The Hague, Sept. 1.—The war office statement today declares the French and English armies have been driven back with heavy losses near La Fere, and that the German advance on Paris continues.

The operations all along the line of battle throughout France are characterized as "satisfactory," and it is stated that the German forces under the crown prince, operating from near Longwy, have enjoyed uninterrupted success. These announcements resulted in rejoicing coming on the anniversary of the battle of Sedan.

Check Russians

It is stated that the German position is now excellent. The reinforcements sent to aid the armies defending eastern Prussia in the east, have assumed the offensive. Stories that the Russians are seriously menacing the defenses of the Weichsel Vistula river are ridiculed at the war office, which insists that the general Russian offensive movement has been checked.

The official bulletins all have the same general tenor, that of the uninterrupted successes.

The Red Cross has undertaken the care of the refugees who have been compelled to flee from Eastern Prussia before the cossack invasion. The Red Cross is taxed to the utmost but a call for volunteers brought so many responses that not only was the difficulty solved, but many had to be put on the waiting list.

The women of Germany are as active as the men. While the government has made an allowance to the families of every soldier at the front, this is considered inadequate and the various relief organizations have taken up the work of caring for all the needy.

Scout Wild Rumors

Wild rumors circulated by the refugees declare that the Russians have threatened to loot Berlin and give it the torch. This latter threat was the subject of much ridicule in the newspapers, which point out that so far the Russian advance has only invaded the unprotected sections of Eastern Prussia.

WEATHER

Forecast for La Crosse and vicinity: Unsettled tonight with probably showers; Wednesday generally fair; no decided change in temperature.

For Wisconsin: Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; probably local showers; cooler tonight and east portion Wednesday.

For Iowa: Unsettled weather tonight and Wednesday; probably local showers; cooler tonight and east portion Wednesday.

Weather Conditions

An area of moderately low pressure extends from the upper lakes to the southwestern states and showers and local thunderstorms have been general in the Missouri, upper and central Mississippi valleys and upper lake region.

The rainfall was generally light except in eastern Iowa where amounts ranging from .08 at La Crosse to 3.16 inches at Dubuque, were recorded.

An area of high pressure covers the northwest and the temperature has fallen in that section.

These conditions will cause unsettled weather in this section tonight with probably local showers; Wednesday will be generally fair with moderate temperature.

CLAIM VICTORIES IN LORRAINE

British and French Commanders Declare German Attack Begins to Lose Its Terrific Force

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The Paris correspondent of the Evening News telegraphing late this afternoon, declares that the British have gained a decided success in France. He quotes the members of the British general staff who returned to Paris from the front as saying: "The German advance has been checked well to the north of Compiègne. They have even asked for an armistice to bury their dead."

Compiègne is 40 miles north of Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Circumstantial rumors of serious disaster to the British disaster to the British expedition brought emphatic denial from the war office today. It was unequivocally denied that there had been any actual reverse, although there was no denial that the allied battle front has again been pushed back in the north.

The entire German army on the French center and left renewed the general assault today, and at last reports it was raging with uninterrupted ferocity. The Germans are anxious to signalize the anniversary of Sedan by a notable triumph and have staked everything on the strength of the blow now being delivered. The fighting, it is agreed, equals in ferocity any to date in the campaign, but the war office insists that the defense lines are holding as originally planned.

Holding the line from Rheims to La Fere, which guards the valleys of the Oise and Aisne rivers, the combined French and British armies again today felt the whole weight of the German assault. Four German armies, those of Grand Duke Albrecht and Gens. Von Klug, Von Buelow and Von Hausen, are pounding at the French left flank, which has continued to crumple ever since the frontier was crossed by the German hosts.

These are the armies that have been assigned to besiege Paris, but so far they have been unable to inflict a decisive defeat. The allies are following the defensive plan, and as they slowly retire from position to position are inflicting enormous damage on the enemy.

General Battle On

In the center the army of the German crown prince has penetrated France through Luxembourg and the "gap of Treves" and a general battle is taking place in the Mezieres-Rocroi region and along the Meuse to Verdun. It is insisted here all attempts of the Germans to bridge the Meuse have failed. They are shelling the entire line of French entrenchments on the Meuse from Sedan to the south.

The French army in Lorraine continued today to act on the offensive. They have shoved the Germans back from their immediate front and the war office says that the "successes here are material and important."

It is very evident that the population generally expects a siege.

Although it is admitted serious results might follow a raid by the German aerial fleet over Paris, there is no widespread alarm. Two aviators who have passed across the city have done practically no damage. The French aviators are preparing to repulse a possible raid by Zeppelins. Chiefs of the war staff are certain the German spy system is in operation and that every public move is promptly reported via secret channels to the German general staff.

The cabinet held an extraordinary session today, at which the various questions of national defense were considered. In this connection the question of the removal of the seat of government was considered. No action was taken and none will be until it is an absolute certainty that the city is to be besieged.

It was explained by members of the cabinet that every movement so far made has been of a precautionary nature. It is known Gen. Joffre told Minister of War Millerand he did not believe the Germans would ever get within fifty miles of Paris. The general in chief believes the

SCRATCH ON THUMB FATAL TO HILMOE

La Crosse Man Dies, Victim of Slight Injury Received While Repairing a Screen

WAS IN HOSPITAL FOUR WEEKS

Bloodpoisoning Gets Big Headway and Father of Two Succumbs at Midnight; Funeral Thurs.

A slight scratch on the thumb, received while repairing a screen porch four weeks ago, proved fatal to Esten Hilmo, aged 35, 525 North Fourteenth street, who died at the La Crosse hospital at midnight Monday.

A sliver of screen wire entered his thumb. He removed it and continued the work. Nothing was thought of the scratch until a few days later when the thumb and hand became sore and swelled. Physicians were called and they ordered his removal to the La Crosse hospital.

Deceased is survived by a widow and two sons. The sons are Edward, aged 10, and Delos, aged 7. The funeral will be at 2:30 Thursday afternoon from the home, Rev. Christy of the English Lutheran church officiating.

Interment will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

WAR HELPS STEEL TRADE

GARY, Ind., Sept. 1.—Business of the United States Steel corporation plant has increased about ten per cent as the indirect result of the European war, it was announced here today. Inability to import from abroad has caused an increased demand on the steel mills for the by-products of the coke ovens. Fertilizing chemicals in particular are in demand.

G. A. R. MEETS IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 1.—Downpour of rain which soaked the city early today failed to dampen the spirit of the 15,000 veterans of the civil war who arrived in Detroit to attend the forty-eighth annual national encampment of the G. A. R. The program of business entertainment was put through without a hitch, despite the storm.

SOLDIER TELLS OF BATTLE OF MONS

Wounded Englishman Tells How British Charged in Face of Machine Guns

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Stories of the fighting from the English viewpoint are now reaching London. All contain the same information, that the Germans always outnumbered the British, but the English lines have held under the most extreme pressure.

The Express prints a story of the battle of Mons, related by one of the wounded landed on Monday. The British met the first German attack in the open, although supported by artillery. The Germans kept moving forward in the face of the artillery fusillade which mowed them down by entire companies, and their efforts were aided by the German cavalry, who tried time after time to break through the lines.

"We were finally assailed by machine guns," continued the soldier, "and in self-defense we were ordered to prepare for the charge. On the word of command we rushed forward, yelling. The German line broke as we neared their ranks and we fired as we ran, shooting them in the backs. The few left were quickly bayoneted."

"Some of our artillery reserved their fire when the attack was renewed and the Germans, believing the guns silenced, charged in mass formation. When they were almost up to the muzzles of the cannon they were turned loose and the entire attacking party almost wiped out. The remainder were easily picked off by the British rifles."

SAYS TURKS HAVE BULGAR ALLIANCE

Agreement to Make Common Cause Foreshadowed by Turkish Ambassador

BALKAN LEAGUE NOT TO REFORM

Diplomat Declares Bulgaria Has Community of Interest with the Porte

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—A Turkish-Bulgarian agreement to further the interests of the two countries was foreshadowed this afternoon in the following statement by the Turkish ambassador:

"Regarding the rumors of the reformation of the Balkan alliances against Turkey, it is absolutely false. As proving this, I have information that a Turkish-Bulgarian committee has been formed, just before the war broke out, to consider means of furthering the interests which the two countries hold so largely in common. Since then, several meetings have been held in which both the Turkish and the Bulgarian members have delivered earnest addresses commenting upon the community of interest between the two countries and necessity of following a common policy. And what is more significant is that the semi-official Bulgarian newspaper 'Politica' states that the object of the committee enjoys the sympathy of all official circles in Bulgaria and speaks of the common origin of the two people as a further bond between them."

"This very remarkable statement means that Bulgaria, which was included and which included herself so far amongst Slavonic people on account of the accident of her Slav language, to date disclaims disconnection with the Slav family, and proclaims herself a sister nation of Turkey, which in reality she is."

This statement was regarded in official circles here today as indicating that if Turkey and Bulgaria form an alliance, it will probably give them the balance of power in the Balkan states.

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Constantinople advices say that the Turkish army is about to mobilize with a Mohammedan army of the first line of 200,000. Although Turkey still insists she will remain neutral, the information here is that most of the officers of the new army will be Germans.

GERMANS CLAIM THE CAPTURE OF 70,000 RUSSIANS IN BATTLE

Anniversary of Sedan.

On Sept. 1, 1870, forty-four years ago today, the French army under Gen. McMahon gave battle to the Germans at Sedan.

They were defeated, and on September 2, surrendered. The French losses were 17,000; the German 9,000. The French surrendered 105,000 men to the German army of 170,000.

Today six million men are actively engaged in combat. The Austrian official statement estimates the number engaged along the battle line of Eastern Prussia-Austria-Russia at 3,000,000. The battle along the 235 miles of French frontier from the valley of the Oise to Alsace finds an equal number of troops engaged.

RUSSIANS CLAIM BIG VICTORIES

Say Austrian and German Defenses Are Giving Way Before Their Advance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—German victories in what was termed "the greatest battle so far in the European war" were reported to the German embassy this afternoon from Berlin. In one battle three Russian army corps were completely annihilated and 70,000 Russian soldiers were taken prisoners it was stated.

The dispatch was sent from the Berlin foreign office by wireless via Sayville, L. I. as follows:

"Official reports of victory at Alenstein ever greater than those before. Three Russian army corps annihilated. Seventy thousand prisoners, including two commanding generals, 300 officers and artillery. In the west Gen. Von Kluck repulsed French flanking attempt. Gen. Von Buelow completely defeated superior French force near St. Quentin after having captured English infantry battalion. Gen. Von Hausen forced back French up river at Reims."

VIENNA, Via Rome, Sept. 1.—In an official statement issued by the Austrian war office, today, the battle now in progress along the Austrian-Prussian-Russian frontier is referred to as the "greatest in the history of the world."

Already there are three million men engaged. Every branch of the service is represented and the fighting tide ebbs and flows like that of the sea.

While the fighting has been in progress for days along an enormous battle front, no decisive result has yet been attained. It is stated, however that as a result of the concentration of the forces between Lublin, capital of the District of Lublin in Russian Poland and Grubieszow (Grubeschow?) Russian Poland, a distance of sixty miles, the fighting there has become almost a hand to hand engagement, and a decisive result cannot much longer be delayed.

The Russians are putting forth desperate efforts to break the strength of the Austrian invasion of Russian Poland, fearing the effect of a success at this point on the general situation in Poland.

Deny Heavy Losses

The Austrian war office claims the Russian invasion of Austria's territory has been more than offset by the success that has accrued to the Austrian arms in Russian Poland. Denial is made that the Austrian army has met with enormous losses. It is admitted that the casualties are heavy but it is also declared that they are far from being excessive.

Claim Advance

ST. PETERSBURGH, Sept. 1.—Admitting that the entire Austrian active army now seems to be at the theatre of war in Galicia the war office today declared that the "Russian advance continues." The war office insists that the Austrian line is giving way. The Russians are now within less than a day's march of Lemberg proper, the lines extending, with Lemberg as the center from Kamenga, to the east of Lemberg, through Glyniany to Brodzavitha to the southeast. It is along this line that the fiercest fighting has taken place.

The Austrians have attempted a flanking movement through Russian Poland by way of Kielce and Lublin and troops have been detached to cope with this.

BRITISH PLAN FLANK MOVEMENT

Believed They Have Landed Force in Belgium to Cut Off Communication

EXPERTS OPTIMISTIC TODAY

Declare Russian Movement on Prussia Is Progressing Exactly as Planned

BY ED L. KEEN

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Concentrating all of their enormous energies along the French left center, the German army was today fighting in another attempt to crush completely the allied armies. An empty siege of Paris, it is admitted, would be little of a triumph unless the allied armies were completely crushed.

It is now certain that every move for the last ten days has been designed to surround the allies. That the efforts have failed has been due to the French-British strategy, which provided for withdrawal so soon as an attack reaches a certain height.

To Flank Germans

Hints of important developments are being given at the war office. It is believed they contemplate a new offensive move. Some reports suggest the British have landed another large force in Belgium and that they are planning co-operation with the Belgians in striking at the German communications and possibly trying to flank the German right wing in France. From several sources the report that there was a scarcity of rations in the German army at the front have reached London.

Operations in the east are reported to be working out exactly as planned. It is stated that while the Germans are heavily reinforcing their lines and at certain points have essayed the offensive, they have been unable to check the Russian forward movement.

Split Austrian Forces

While the issue in Galicia still is in doubt, the Russians are said to have succeeded in dividing the Austrian forces and to have practically annihilated one entire army corps, the Austrian tenth, and taken thousands of prisoners. All in all the British war experts declare the situation is daily growing brighter for the allies.

ASSAILANT GETS 25 YEARS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—George A. Webb, a West Indian negro, and former janitor of a public school in the upper Bronx, was today sentenced to not more than forty years and not less than twenty-five years in Sing Sing prison for assault on thirteen year old Catherine Larkin. In passing sentence Justice Brady told Webb he was fortunate in not being sent to the electric chair.

Influenza or Grip

Dr. John M. Mayhew describes Influenza or La Grippe as a contagious disease, the symptoms of which are sometimes so obscure that a "multitude of sins" are sometimes hid under the diagnosis. It often comes on with a marked chill, or possibly by several hours of chilly sensations accompanied by sneezing, which is soon followed by a distressing cough and sweating, with pains in all parts of the body. Unless checked the disease develops into bronchopneumonia or a croupous pneumonia. The patient should be put to bed or compelled to take absolute rest in an easy chair, the diet should be light, but should consist of nourishing food and one Anti-Kamnia Tablet should be taken every two or three hours. This treatment will usually break up the disease in a remarkably short time. Anti-Kamnia Tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. ### Short Story

MISS ABIGALS WARD

By JOHN DARLING

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Most old maids are old maids for two or three reasons. In the case of Abigail Joy, however she was an old maid because her great grandfather packed up his duds at the time of the sailing of the Mayflower from England and came along with the Pilgrim Fathers as one of them. He was proud of the fact as long as he lived, and when he died the younger Joys took it up and continued it down to Miss Abigail.

If Miss Abigail had ever found a young man related to the Mayflower and Plymouth Rock and pork and beans she would have fallen in love, but such a one had never appeared.

When Miss Abigail was twenty-five years old a great trial came to her. Owing to an accident and a death she was in a way forced to take to her home and care for a girl relative ten years old. The name was Mildred Drew. The child's father had come of Pilgrim stock, but her mother could not be traced back further than John Hancock. John had been the first to sign the Declaration of Independence, but what was that compared with the landing at Plymouth Rock? Miss Abigail must take care of Mildred, but as she thought of that half blood she shuddered.

Would Mildred romp and play and tear her dresses? Would she jump a ditch, climb a tree or hit a boy in the ear with a snowball? Would she want to skate on the pond or slide down the long hill?

No one but an old maid and a Joy can tell what Miss Abigail suffered as she thought of these things. Even the idea of a tin peddler winking at the little girl over the gate made her shudder in a way to untie her shoe strings.

And this was the prim, proper and precise woman that the young girl came to after being brought up like other little girls to the age of ten. Thenceforward she was to be an automaton. She might talk but very quietly. She might sing, but very softly. She might walk, but it should be with dignity. If she started to laugh she must check it.

The girl had no playmates—no friends. She attended the village school, but in obeying her guardian's instructions she had to repress those who wanted to be friends. She went alone, came alone, and sat alone.

Mildred was sixteen when Tommy Barnes came. Miss Abigail had to have some milk the cow, feed the pigs and cut the wood. Tommy was the son of a sea captain's widow and he was to receive $2 per week and board and eat by himself in the kitchen. More than that, the old maid said to him:

"You must not think of speaking to Mildred unless she speaks to you."

"Yes marm."

"You are to call her Miss Drew."

"Yes marm."

And the law was laid down to the girl as to her conduct and, of course, the result was to make both the young folks hypocrites and deceivers. They plied each other at the beginning, and it was not long before the pity turned to love.

They made chances to talk, and though they were caught at it after a while and Tom was discharged, they found opportunities to meet now and then.

Tom went to work in the factory where he could save a little each week, and the years passed drearily enough for him and the girl. When she had reached her twentieth year, and he his majority, they had never had a chance to talk together for a half an hour. They had never written a note to each other. Miss Abigail was flatterer herself that she had brought up her ward in a way to do the Pilgrim Fathers proud, when things begin to happen. She fell down stairs and broke her arm, and for a time she could not play the watch dog.

During this time Tom said to Mildred: "I have saved half enough money to buy a schooner and I am going coasting. Capt. Baker will go with me the first year. As soon as the craft is paid for we will be married. You had better tell Miss Abigail and prepare her for it."

"Why, she will turn me right out doors!" was the reply.

"Then you will live with mother." It took a week for Mildred to get her courage up. She had never in the slightest opposed Miss Abigail. Nothing but love could have given her the courage to do so now, for she was sure of the outcome. She had to love in secret, but perhaps it was stronger for that. She realized that her life was being warped and spoiled, and she clung to Tommy as her anchor. One evening in a voice scarcely above a whisper she said to her guardian:

"Would you care much if Tom Barnes and me got married?"

The old maid turned and stared at her.

"In a year from now?"

"Put on your hat and shawl."

She held the door open while the girl passed out into the night. It was a cruel thing to do, and she had done it cruelly, but she must uphold the traditions of the Pilgrim Fathers.

"I must go down to the wharf and tell Tom," said the girl.

She did not beg to be taken back. She did not weep. She was not at all frightened nor greatly surprised.

At the wharf lay Tom's schooner, the "None Such." She had a cargo aboard and would sail with the morning tide. Mildred stood at the edge of the wharf and called, but no one appeared.

"But I must see Tom, and tell him what has happened!" said the girl, and she climbed over the low rail and found a place to sit down out of the gusts, which were coming stronger and oftener.

Mildred had been there some minutes when there came a movement of the craft that would have told any one that her mooring lines had parted and that she was driving out of the harbor upon the tumbling sea.

Scream after scream was uttered, but the gale stopped them like a wall. When the schooner began to pitch and roll the girl found her way to the cabin and sat there in a daze. She was being blown straight out to sea.

The fact that the craft had no sail and was not too heavily loaded saved her for the night, but was a night to be long remembered. The schooner was a mere chip for the waves to play with. When morning came and the gale abated the "None Such" was fifty miles off shore. The girl found some provisions and prepared breakfast.

Mildred had felt no great fear for herself during the storm, shrillulduu herself during the worst of the storm, but most of her thoughts had been for Tommy. He would return to the wharf to find the craft gone, and what would he do? It might be two or three days before he suspected that she had gone to sea with all his worldly possessions, and it would be a hard blow to bear up under.

By noon the sea was flat and the wind had gone down. There would be no progress for sailing ships, and although she could see the smoke of steamers and the hulls were passing below the horizon. The girl must pass another night alone, and as the night promised to be fine she brought bedding on deck. During the day she had inspected the craft quite thoroughly, and the one thing that had interested her more than another was the fog horn.

It was midnight as the girl was aroused by the hoarse blast of a steamer's whistle and she sprang up to find that a fog had settled down like a blanket. Blast after blast came from a steamer, and each one was answered from the schooner.

And then a louder blast—the sound of voices and a great liner loomed up like a hill, and came to a stop just as her nose touched the broadside of the "None Such," and gently heeled and her over a bit. Men on the steamer's bow began to shout and curse, as is always the case, and through a blanket of fog came the words:

"Please don't swear at me! I couldn't help it."

Two or three men let themselves down from the steamer's bow.

"It's a girl, and she's all alone!" they called back.

It took about ten minutes to get Mildred aboard the steamer, and for her to explain the matter. Then one of the men reported on the condition of the schooner, and the captain said:

"She isn't worth to tow into port, but the lad you are going to marry shan't lose anything."

The purse made up by the passengers and the sum added by the steamship line amounted to thousands of dollars—enough to buy a cottage and another schooner.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

What the Old Man Saw In The Sand.

THE Old Gentleman Felt Sorry For Her.

THERE are many wonderful sights which you children can see if you only learn where to look for them," said daddy after the children had been telling of their happy and busy day.

"Tell us where, daddy," said Evelyn.

"Well, for instance, you might look in the sand," said daddy.

"Why, daddy, what is there about sand that could be interesting?" asked Jack, for he couldn't for the life of him make out what daddy meant.

"Some of the greatest and wisest men in the world," said daddy, "have devoted all their lives to studying some of the tiniest insects that live, and the things they have learned are among the most wonderful things on earth. A man named Maeterlinck, who lives over in France, has written a great book that is all about bees, which you must read some time, and other great men who are as wise as he have lain days at a time right on their 'tummies' in the sand with magnifying glasses studying little black ants."

"And I'll tell you what one of them found. He saw a little black ant come out of her nest in the sand one morning and go searching for food for her many, many children for them to feed on as soon as they should be hatched from the eggs she had laid. She found the food in the shape of a great, fat, juicy caterpillar. She killed the caterpillar after a fashion which ants have. She did it by squeezing him—he was many times her size, of course—at different parts of his length where certain nerves are placed, and she knows the position of each nerve as well as your doctor knows where yours are."

"After awhile the caterpillar was paralyzed and couldn't help himself, so the ant finished her work by crushing his head, and then she dragged him to her nest. But she wasn't ready to put him inside the hole yet, and she went away on an errand somewhere, and when she got back some beetles had come and stolen half her caterpillar."

"So very patiently she started off to look for another caterpillar, but there didn't seem to be any around. The old gentleman who was watching her felt sorry for her because she was working so hard to find her caterpillar, and he helped her hunt for it, but he didn't seem to have any luck, either. But he found her some fat bugs that he knew ants liked, and they didn't do at all, for she wanted that caterpillar, and she turned up her anty nose at the bugs."

"Well, after awhile the old gentleman who was watching her found her caterpillar for her, and I suppose she was much obliged to him, and she killed it—or paralyzed it—the same as she had done with the other, and this time she didn't take any chances, but dragged it into her nest right away, and the bugs had no chance to get it."

THE BALKANS

LIKE MEXICO

A recent issue of the "Vols-
kfreund" contained an interesting discussion of the war from the standpoint of Germany. It opens with an argument by analogy which is calculated to strike home in the United States. That portion of the article follows:"The causes which led to the present struggle in Europe are too
little understood and appreciated in this country. Let me try to sum
them up by means of an imaginary
parallel. Serbia and the other Balkan states have been to Austria-Hungary a source of continual trouble, very much like Mexico on your southern border, only worse.
Now, suppose Spain was ambitious
to gain a foothold on the American continent. And to this end Spain
were continually fomenting insurrections in Mexico. Not content with this, the Mexicans, under Spanish instigation and by means of Spanish gold, were organizing revolutionary societies in those American states, like Arizona and New Mexico, where there was a large and unstable Spanish population. Now suppose the Vice President of the United States, traveling with his wife through Arizona, were assas-
inated by a Mexican and the crime
directly traced to the Mexican capital. Would not the United States
be perfectly justified in any steps—
would not national honor and
justice demand—that a full reparation be exacted from Mexico, and that America officials be permitted
to investigate and discover the real instigators of the crime? If Spain
as Russia has done, showed itself
willing and ready to plunge the world into war in order to forestallsuch investigation, would not the common sense of mankind assume that Spain was afraid her own guilt
or complicity in the crime would be uncovered?The remainder of the article deals
with well known facts leading up to actual hostilities; it recites in detail
the commercial rivalry in which England was being worsted, French resentment for the affair of 1870
and Russia's ambition to reach the Mediterranean. It repeats the tale of Russia's interference and mobilization and the bomb-throwing assaults of French airships, and concludes:For 25 years every utterance and every action of the Kaiser has been carefully calculated to promote and
maintain peace with all the world.
But the Kaiser knew with whom
he had to deal in the present crisis.
And when Russia continued to mobilize, when French airships crossed Belgium and Luxembourg into German territory, when bombs were dropped into German cities, while the Czar and the French ministry
were protesting that they desired
peace, the Kaiser would have been a fool and recreant to his duty had
he not struck when he did.
It was the intention of Russia
and France to delay action until
their mobilizations were completed.
It would have been national suicide
for Germany to let this scheme succeed.

ANOTHER TAX

LID NAILED

His curiosity aroused by the declaration of a neighbor that when he paid his automobile license it was sent to Madison where one-fourth of the entire sum was set aside to pay
the clerks that handle the license
fees, a well known La Crosse man
wrote to Madison asking the state treasurer to explain to him the exact
disposition of automobile license money. In reply State Treasurer Johnson wrote as follows:Total licenses for La Crosse county $5,156.00Twenty-five per cent of total turned into
good roads fund 1,289.00Used to pay for number plates and postage 304.39The balance returned to La Crosse Co. 3,562.61And there we are—with another
fair-average tax lie shot to pieces.

VOTE TODAY TO SAVE

YOUR JUST RIGHTS

If you have not voted, there is still
time. Voting is an important duty.
It is particularly important now,
when the forces special privilege,
under the guise of retrenchments,
are urging the election as governor
of the president of a refrigerator car
company, an old time railroad lobbyist.You MUST stop this. If you are a laborer, you must stop it to save
the labor laws and the rights of labor.If you are a retailer, you must stop it to save yourselves from the rebate and the higher freight rate.Every consumer must help stop it,
because in the end the consumer pays the freight and the rebate.As you value your liberty and a fair and open chance for every man,
go to the polls and VOTE.We are glad the unmethodical policy by which the Methodists switch
their pastors about as though fearing they would get acquainted with their congregations has not deprived us of Rev. T. Stanley Oadams.If you don't vote for a La Crosse man for United States senator today it may be 100 years before you have another chance.If Uncle Sam were to mobilize the rummy players Europe would tremble.

NO OYSTERS—TOO HOT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Contrary
to tradition the "R" in September
will not signal return of the oyster
season today, sea food dealers declared. It's too hot yet, they say.Yaller straw hats seem to be the

The Innocent Bystander

Bill Jones went to a boxing show.
He liked a lively bout;
He got a seat in the front row
Where he could see and shout.
Two husky pugs began to scrap.
Then one met with an odd mishap.
He landed straight on Bill—yer-
slap!

And then Bill's light went out.

When Bill recovered, off he went
To watch an auto race.
He spent his last remaining cent
To get a reserved space.A big machine ran off the track.
It landed right on Bill's back.
For he, of course was there—
alack!

And in no other place.

Then Bill went off one afternoon
To study up the war.
He loafed about a nice saloon
As he'd often done before.A row began and then a scrap.
Between a gink and talking chap.
Both landed quick upon Bill's
yap,
And laid him on the floor.Said Bill: "Take me to some safe place
Like that there fight or auto
race."

A Pretty compliment

The manicure girl, a charming
blonde, was summoned to the Coun-
tesse's apartment, and, at the end
of her work she blushed and modestly said:"Might I ask you, madam, for your autograph?"The Countess chose a sheet of crested note-paper, scribbled a line
on it and said:"Here is an autograph and a testimonial as well."The manicure took the sheet of tinted paper and read above the Countess's signature, the words:"There's a divinity that shapes
our ends."

An Epigram

"That wasn't a bad epigram on it!"

"I'm sure it is. I asked a parson
once what an epigram was, and he
says, 'It's a short sentence that

trumps the pal."

"Seven days," came the reply.

"That ain't no epigram, is it?"

"I'm sure it is. I asked a parson
once what an epigram was, and he
says, 'It's a short sentence that

trumps the pal."

When She Grows Up

enquired, startled as he grasped hold
of the tottering man.

"Wrong!" the poet muttered.

"Ye gods! I wrote a poem about my little boy. I began the first verse with these lines:"My son! My pigmy counterpart."

"Yes? Yes?"

The poet drew a long breath as
he took a newspaper from his pocket.

"Read!" he blazed suddenly.

"See what that criminal compositor
did to my opening lines."

The friend read aloud.

"My son, my pig, my counter-
part!"

A Satisfactory Explanation

"How does it happen," said the teacher to the new pupil, "that
your name is Allen and your moth-

after a moment's thought, "you see,
she married again and I didn't."

"Then why don't you tell the truth? We won't hurt you."The man opened his mouth and closed it. Then he said, "It's a book."

"Did you ever read it before?"

"This is the third time I've read
it.""Seems as if it hasn't accomplished
no good on you, as you still tell
lies."The man rose abruptly, and laid
the book on the seat. His manner
was quite as discouraging as it had been from the start."Honey," interposed Willock,
"that ain't to say a lie, not a real lie.""Is it a hand-organ?" Lahoma demanded sternly."In a manner of speaking, honey,
it is a hand-organ in the sense of
shutting you off from asking questions. You learn to distinguish the saucers of speech as you get older.
Out in the big world, people don't say this or that according as it is,
they steep their words in a sauce
to suit the digestion. Don't be so quick to call 'lies' 'til you learn the flavor of a fellow's meaning, not by
his words but by the sauce he steeps
'em in.""Don't get mad at me," said Lahoma to the trapper. "I don't know nothing, never having captured and
branded the thoughts that is caged
up in books. But I want to be civilized and I am investigating according."The trapper, somewhat conciliated, resumed himself. He regarded the girl with greater interest, not without certain approval. "How comes
it that you aren't civilized, living with such a knowing specimen as your own father?""My father's dead. Brick is my cousin, but I not knowing of him till
he saved my life two years ago and after that, me with the Indians and him all alone. Would you like to hear about it?""I wouldn't bother him, honey,
with all that long story," interposed
Willock, suddenly grown restive."Yes, tell me," said the trapper,
moving over that she might find room
on the block of wood beside him.Lahoma seated herself eagerly
and looking up into the other's face,
which softened more and more under
her gaze, she said:"We were crossing the plains—
father, mother and me, in a big wagon. And men dressed like Indians
they come whooping and shooting,
and father turns around and drives
with all his might—drives clear to yonder mountain. And mother dies,
being that sick before, and the joik-
ing too much for her. So father takes me on his horse and rides all night, and I fall asleep. Well, those same men dressed like Indians, they
all put their wigs and feathers off
and was gambling over what they stole from the other wagons. So father, he sees the light from the window and rides up with me. And they takes him for a spy and says
they, in a voice awful fierce, just this way—"Kill 'em both!"The trapper gave a start at the ex-
plosiveness on her tone.Lahoma shouted again, as harshly
as she could, "Kill 'em both," says
they." Then she turned to Willock,
"Did I put them words in the correct sauce, Brick?"

"You done nobly, honey."

Lahoma resumed. "Now it was in a manner of happening that Brick,
he was riding around to have a look at the country, and when he rides up
to the cabin, why, right outside
there was me and father, and two of the robbers about to kill us.""What are you devils up to?" says Brick. "You go to hell," says the leading man, "that's where we're going to send this little girl," says he.
"You go to hell and maybe you'll meet 'em there," he says. And with that he ups and shoots at Brick, the
bullet lifting his hat right off his head
and scaring the horse out from under him, so he falls right there at the feet of them two robber men, on his back. Brick, he never harmed nobody before in his life, but what was he to do? He might have let them kill us but that would have left
father and me in their grip, so he
just grabs the gun out of the leading man's hand, as he hadn't ever
carried a gun in his life his own self,CASTORIA

and he shot both them robbers, him
still laying there on his back—""No, honey, I got up about that time.""Brick, you told me you was still lying there on your back just as you fell.""Did I, honey, well, I reckon I was, then, for when I told you about it, it was more recent.""It's awful interesting," the trap-
per remarked dryly."Yes, ain't it?" Lahoma glowed.
"Then father jumped on one horse
with me, and Brick put out on another, and when I woke up, the Indians were all everywhere, but Brick come here and lived all alone and nearly died because he didn't have me to comfort him. So the Indians took me and they killed father, and
for two years I was moved from village till Red Feather brought me
to Brick. And then we found out
we were cousins and he is going to civilize me. Brick, he remembers a cousin of his, Cousin Martha Wil-
lock, her sister went driving out to the Oklahoma country with her husband and little girl and wasn't never heard of. I am the little girl, all right, and Brick he's my cousin.
And wasn't it lucky Brick was riding around that night, looking at the country, when they was about to put daylight into me?""I'd think," said the trapper, "that he'd take you back to your Cousin Martha, for men folks like him and
me aren't placed to take care of women folks."Yes, but he got a letter saying
my cousin Martha and all her family
is done been swept away by a flood
of the Mississippi River, and him
and me is all they is left of the Willocks, so we got to stick together. Besides, you see, he killed them two robbers, and the rest ofthe gang is waiting for him; Brick
he feels so dreadful, he never having so much a put a scratch to a man's face before, for he wouldn't
never fight as a boy, his conscience
wouldn't rest if he was in civilization. He'd go right up to the first policeman he met and say, 'I done
the deed. Carry me to the pen!' he'd say, and then what would become
of me?""He might get another letter from your Cousin Martha to help him out of the scrape."Lahoma stared at him, unable to grasp the significance of these foolish words, and Brick, seeking a diversion, explained his purpose of taking Lahoma to the settlements after supplies and proffered his petition
that Bill Aakins accompany them.

RUSHFORD FARM

BRINGS $40,000

Big Price Paid for Wilson Farm Sold to Syndicate of Peterson Men Recently

RUSHFORD, Minn., Sept. 1.—(Special).—A $40,000 deal in real estate was recently concluded here, when the Oliver Wilson farm was sold to a syndicate consisting of Messrs. N. J. Ambler, E. E. Sandli, N. H. Hepstad and Lars Thompson, all of Peterson. The Wilson farm, which had been in the possession of Mr. Wilson for sixty years, was given over almost entirely to stock raising. It comprises 650 acres.

Personals

Mrs. Will Baerman, son Ralph and daughters Elsie and Katherine are in Houston, the guests of relatives and friends for a few days.

A jolly throng gathered at the grounds of the Bible Academy last Wednesday at about 11 o'clock, the occasion being the annual picnic of the Rushford Presbyterian Sunday school.

Mrs. Hugh Irwin and son Robert of La Crosse, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Heech for several days, returned to their home last Tuesday. They were accompanied by Master Edwin Berg of Ferry street, who was their guest until last Friday.

PORTAGE WINS ITS VIADUCT FIGHT

After a number of years of fighting between the city of Portage and the Milwaukee railroad over the building of a viaduct or subway at Mac street in Portage, an agreement has been reached providing for the building of a subway under the tracks at Mac street.

The railroad, rather than yield to the demands of the people for a viaduct, threatened to move the Portage terminal to Lewiston, about ten miles north of Portage.

After a series of conferences with City Engineer Tennant of Portage and Chief Engineer C. F. Loweth of the Milwaukee road, the city and the railroad have agreed.

Lesson in Scientific Complexion Renewing

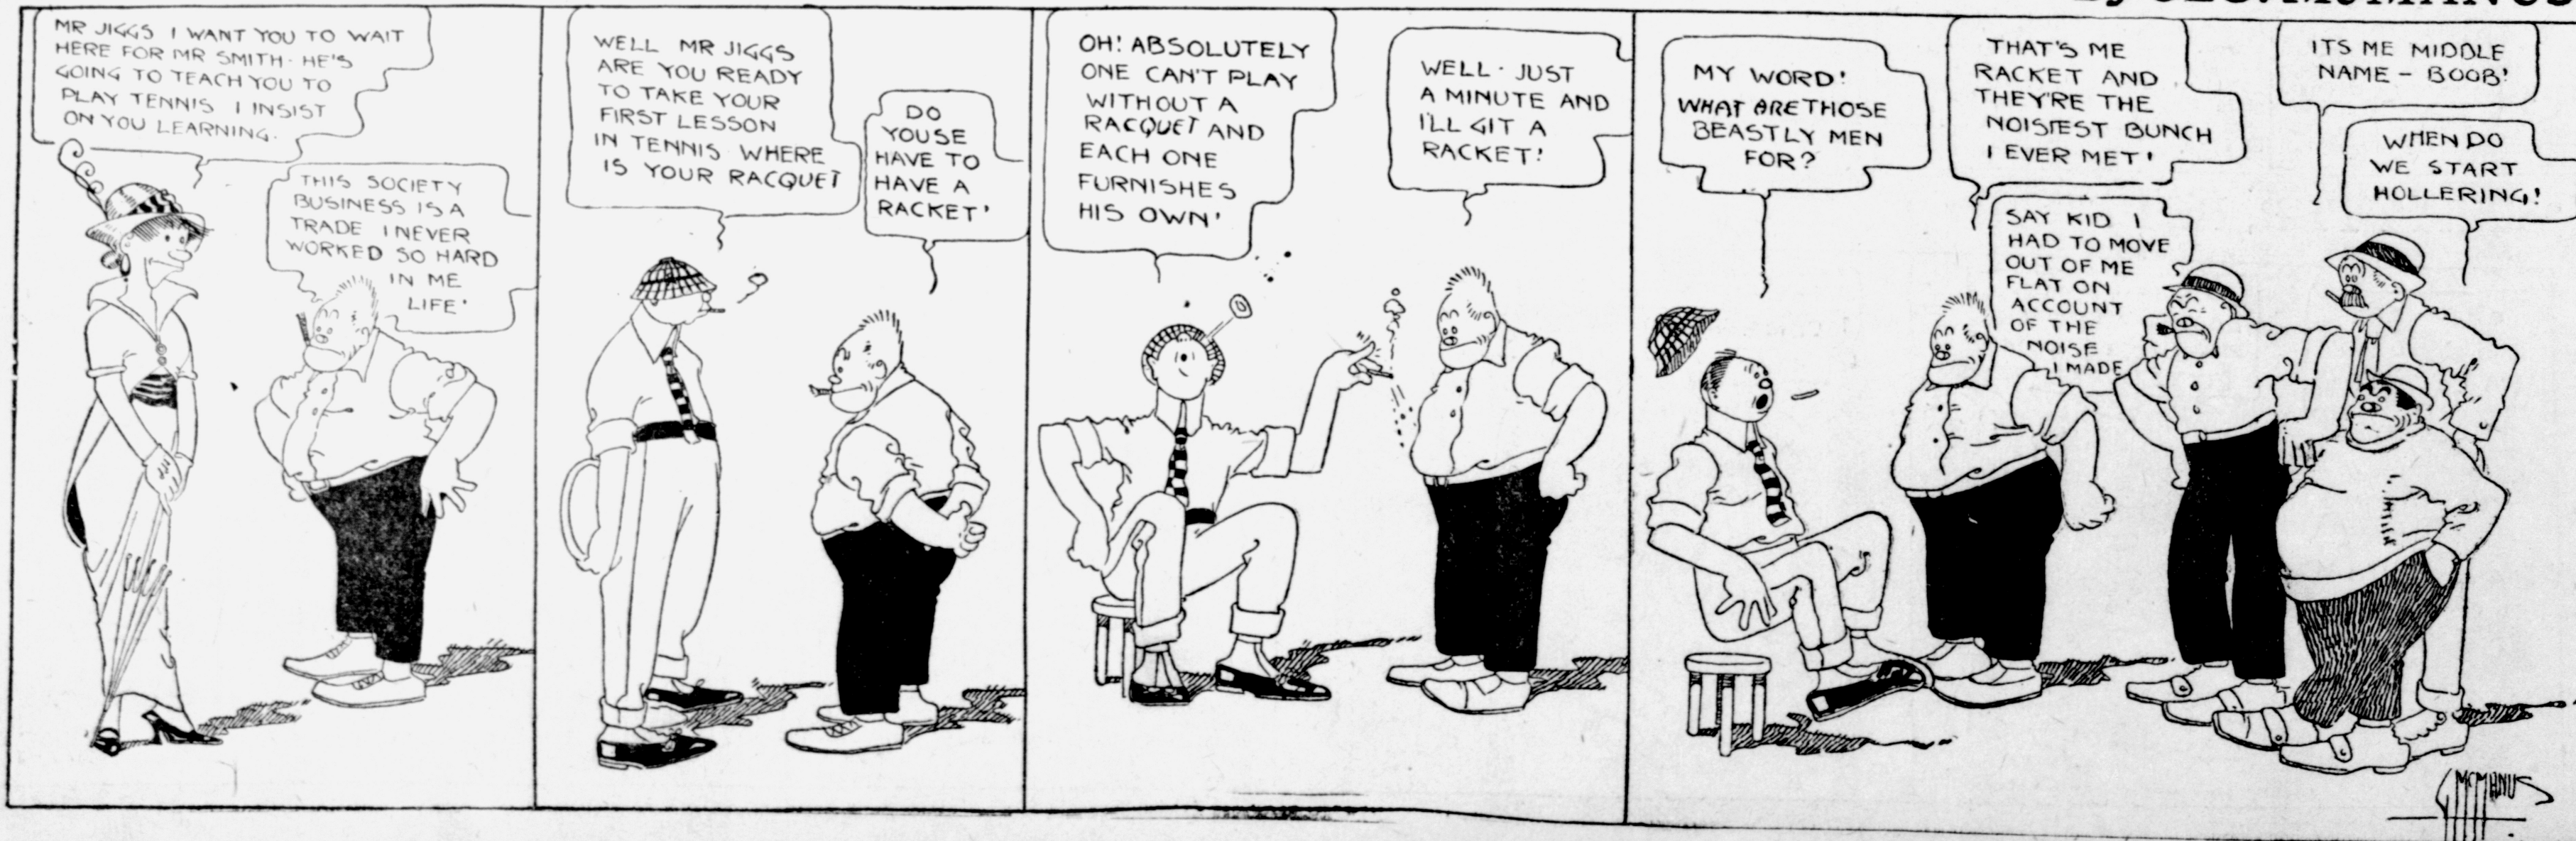

Everyone has a beautiful skin underneath the one exposed to view. Bear that in mind and it will be easier to understand the correct principle in acquiring a lovely complexion. Nature is constantly shedding the top skin in flaky particles like dandruff, only much smaller in size. In abnormal conditions, or in advancing age, these particles are not shed as rapidly as in robust youth. The longer they remain the more soiled or faded they become—that's the immediate cause of a "bad complexion."

It has been discovered that ordinary mercialized wax, to be had at any drug store, will absorb these worn-out particles. The absorption, while hastening Nature's work, goes on gradually enough to cause no inconvenience. In a week or two the transformation is complete. The fresh, healthy, youthful underskin is then wholly in evidence. You who are not satisfied with your complexion should get an ounce of mercialized wax and try this treatment. Use the wax nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.

GET REFUND AND CUT IN THE RATE ON RETURNING EMPTIES

The state railway commission, sitting at Madison today, in the case of the John Gund Brewing company vs. the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, ordered a refund of $278 to the Gund company.

The Gund company claimed the railroad had overcharged them on account of shipping empty bottles from Milwaukee to LaCrosse. The commission so held.

The commission further ordered that in future the rate for empty bottles from Milwaukee to La Crosse be 15 cents per cwt. The old rate was 22 cents per cwt.

ADVERTISE THE LA CROSSE FAIR

Lemuel Drake Goes Through Iowa to Boost the Interstate Exhibition

With the opening date of the Interstate fair but three weeks away, final preparations are nearing completion. Secretary C. S. Van Auker but recently returned from visits to a number of fairs throughout the country, including the Dane county fair at Madison and the Trempealeau county fair at Galesville.

Lemuel Drake left today for Iowa on an advertising trip in the interests of the fair. He will make a number of towns in northern and central Iowa, including Lansing, Elkader, Monona, Calmar, Decorah, Farmersburg and Harper's Ferry. He expects to be gone more than a week.

Much work of improvement has been done at the fair grounds. The machinery building has been given a coat of white paint, and is resplendent in its new covering. All the other buildings and the stock stalls will receive a coat of whitewash.

Eleven teams are at work on the normal school athletic field in the center of the race track. If the field is finished in time, it is thought that a number of athletic events will be arranged for the fair.

F. T. Main will leave this week for Portage and Spring Green to look over stock entries and concessions. Secretary Van Auker will visit the fair at Chippewa Falls, which is considered one of the best in the state. He expects to return with contracts for a number of especially good entries for the races and exhibits.

Advertising matter and entry blanks have been sent to upwards of thirty or forty fairs in the adjacent states. They include Fond du Lac, Appleton, Wausau, Jefferson, Winona, Des Moines, Iowa, and Grand Rapids, Mich.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

YOU Can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture though at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at and look years younger.

"Whys" of European War Moves Explained By Military Expert

BY J. W. T. MASON

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—11 a. m.

With Paris as the center, and with a diameter of 80 miles, draw an arc of a circle to the northwest, forty-five miles from tip to tip. This arc embraces the line of fortresses La Fere-Laon-Rhems, against which the allies now have their backs, trying to stem the German rush to the Seine.

About twenty-five miles further northeast, in the general direction of Liege, draw another arc, sixty miles from tip to tip. This arc, passing through St. Quentin, Verdun, and Reims, marks the German front line forcing the French fortifications.

Besides delivering this frontal attack, the Germans are engaged in two flanking movements. One army extends to the west from St. Quentin, passing through Peronne to Amiens. Another, which has crossed the Meuse river from Longwy, through the Stenay gap, is advancing from the east toward Reims.

The purpose of these three movements—two flanking and one frontal—undoubtedly is to bottle up the allies in the La Fere-Laon-Rhems fortresses, after which the German army could proceed to Paris without serious interference.

This attempt to duplicate Sedan and Metz, which, if successful, would probably mean a decisive German victory in France, has been the constant aim of the German strategists. At Liege, at Namur, at Maubeuge and at Lille, the allies avoided the Kaiser's desire to entice them into their own fortresses and surround them. They retreated, keeping their field armies intact in the open.

Their position, now, however, is more dangerous than in the past, for there are no further fortified lines on which to retire. This fact may hold them at the La Fere-Laon-Rhems line too long. If the German right and left break through and get between the allied forces and Paris, the peril will be immediate. The allies have evaded these encircling traps hitherto by desperate fighting and skillful retreats. They are now backing into the most alarming one of all. Time, however, is working for them. It seems impossible the Germans can continue much longer to deliver their terrific massed attacks without rest. There are limits to human endurance.

Russia's advance through East Prussia is not progressing as rapidly as early indications suggested. For more than a week the fighting has been proceeding about the lake and marshy districts of Allenstein. The Germans are giving way slowly, but apparently are fighting as tenacious a battle as are the allies in France. Osterode, fifty miles east of the Vistula, appears to mark the German front. The field fighting has not indicated Russia will have an easy time crossing the Vistula.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

FRANCE.—While Germans continue their general flanking movements to surround and crush the allies, an extraordinary cabinet council decided there was no immediate need of moving the capital from Paris. The Germans continue to press southward from the northwest and Paris admits the allied lines are being contracted.

BELGIUM.—Evidence indicates the Belgians contemplate a raid of the German lines of communication, and it is reported British troops landed at Ostend will probably co-operate in the movement.

ENGLAND.—War office censorship apparently being more rigidly enforced despite announcement that plans are on foot to remove cause for complaint.

RUSSIA.—Official war office statement says the German defense has stiffened, that the Russians have lost heavily, but the German losses are even greater, and that the German line will be unable to withstand the renewed Russian attack. The claim is made that the Austrian army, admitted to number in excess of 1,000,000 men, is now engaged, but that it is not nearly as formidable as the smaller German force. Seventeen thousand prisoners and 120 guns are claimed to have been taken by the Russians in the fighting from August 26 to 30. It is also claimed the Austrian invasion of Russian Poland has been checked and the invading army routed.

GERMANY.—Official bulletin issued today declared the Germans continue their victorious advance toward Paris. The situation in Eastern Prussia is described as excellent and the fresh German armies are driving the Russians back.

AUSTRIA.—It is announced that the Austrians are holding their own against the Russian invasion of Galicia.

WATCH CHIMNEY OF ST. PETER'S

Crowd Waits to Tell by the Smoke of Burning Ballots if New Pope Has Been Elected

ROME, Sept. 1.—Great crowds gathered in St. Peter's square today, watching the chimney of the Sistine chapel of the vatican by which, according to Rome tradition, the people may know when the cardinals of the Sacred college have cast a ballot in the election of a new pope. The method of casting the ballot provides that after each cardinal has taken his throne, the eldest member of the Sacred college shall rise and carrying the folded ballot above his head, approach the altar and, after kneeling, deposit it in a huge chalice. The other cardinals then follow in order. If the vote cast fails to give a two-thirds majority to any cardinal, the ballots are then mixed with wet straw and burned and the cardinals return to their cells. It is for the thin column of smoke arising from the Sistine chapel when the ballots are burned that the crowds await in St. Peter's square. The ballots which result in the election are not mixed with straw and the people know that a new pope has been chosen by the column of thin white smoke.

FILM MEN AGREE WITH SHERMAN

War Has Ended Production of Feature Films in Lands Across the Sea

"War is 'h-----' what General Sherman said."

At least it is in the opinion of the moving picture men of La Crosse.

According to E. J. McWilliams of the Casino Theater, the European war already had affected the moving picture industry. Feature films, more than the ordinary run of pictures are being hit by the conflict across the Atlantic. Most of the feature pictures are made in Europe and the war is bound to stop the production of first class film stories. To makers of features in this country the situation is reversed. Manufacturers are able to make pictures, but the great European market is cut off, making it a losing venture. In the instance of some manufacturers, especially the Pathe Freres company, many of their expert directors and camera men as well as players have been called to the old country.

The war hits the exhibiting as well as the producing end of the business. Projection machine carbons, the greater supply of which are made in Europe, and which before the war sold at thirty dollars a thousand now bring one hundred and the price is still soaring.

EIGHT SEATLESS AT SPARTA SCHOOL

High School So Crowded that Eight Students Are Unable to Find Seats; More to Enroll

SPARTA, Wis., Sept. 1.—(Special.)—So crowded that eight prospective students were unable to find seats, Sparta high school opened yesterday. Two hundred sixty-eight students were enrolled, and a number more were expected to enter today.

The thirty-eighth school year at Sparta opens with a larger attendance than ever before in the history of the city. The enrollment at the grade schools is as follows: Central ward, 268; Northwest primary, 70; West primary, 62; East primary, 105; Depot primary, 68, making a total of 591.

In the high school the day was spent in enrolling the students. A unique feature of the opening day was the small size of the freshman class. For the first time in years it has failed to eclipse the mark of the previous year. The classes number: freshman, 74; sophomore, 73; junior, 72; senior, 45. The total enrollment last year was 255.

Elect Stage Director

The Footlight club, Sparta's dramatic society, last night elected Seth R. Burroughs stage director, to succeed Charles P. Tinx, who has moved east. The meeting of the club was held in Judge R. A. Richards' office. Several plays were discussed, and it was decided to hold a meeting shortly to lay definite plans for the fall and winter work.

Personal

Herbert Sherwin has returned to Sparta after spending the summer in Dakota.

George Grossman returned from Westby yesterday.

James Freeman left today for Barren, Wis.

Alvin J. Graf left this morning for Madison, where he will visit relatives before going on to Chicago to visit a few days with his brother.

Amund Olson of Viroqua was in Sparta yesterday.

H. D. Griswold of West Salem was a Sparta caller yesterday.

JOHN SCHLABACH AN OLD RESIDENT

John Schlabach died at his home in the town of Farmington in this county, Aug. 27, 1914, aged 79 years, 8 months and 27 days, the cause of his death being heart trouble.

He was born in Germany, near the town of Yahrfeidt, Dec. 1, 1834, and in 1868, on April 27, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Jacob at the town of Fallenthal.

He emigrated to America in 1880, settling on a farm in Houston county, Minn., where he lived until 1893, when he purchased the farm in this county where he made his home until the date of his death.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. George Umberger of La Crosse, Minn., and Mrs. Anna Peters of La Crosse, and their children.

His funeral exercises were held at the home on August 29, being in charge of B. B. Mercereau of West Salem, Rev. S. L. McKee, of the same village, officiating, and the body was interred in the Mindoro cemetery.

FOOD SHORTAGE IS RESULT OF BIG WAR

Local Norwegians Say Supplies Are Low in That Country; A. J. Ness Is Back from Europe

A. J. Ness, La Crosse jeweler, who with several local members of the Normanna Saengerkor of this city toured Norway, returned today from that country.

"The effect of the big European war," said Mr. Ness, "is indicated chiefly in the scarcity of food products there. Residents of Norway, anticipating a long drawn contest, have purchased all the available food supplies."

"Labor conditions are poor there now, also due to the war. Norway, because of its immense water power, is rapidly developing into a great manufacturing country. A big portion of the raw materials is imported from countries in Europe now engaged in war. Importation has ceased and hundreds of men have been thrown out of work."

Mr. Ness said he encountered no difficulty in leaving the country.

He was joined in Chicago by his wife, who accompanied him to La Crosse.

FRANCE OBJECTS TO WILSON PLAN

Says Our International Obligations Forbid Purchasing Ships from Belligerents

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Two more important objections that France has to President Wilson's plan to spend $30,000,000 on an American merchant marine were pointed out at the French embassy today.

One referred to the signing by the United States of the declaration of London in 1909 for rules of naval warfare.

The second is that the purchase of any ships by the United States would be an aid to the belligerents whose ships were purchased. The embassy statement authorized by Ambassador Jusserand said:

"In response to interrogation, the French embassy pointed out that the United States signed the declaration of London in 1909.

"Two paragraphs of this declaration read: 'The transfer of any enemy's vessels to a neutral flag, effected after the outbreak of hostilities is void, unless it is proved that such a transfer was not made in order to evade the consequences to which any enemy's vessel as such is exposed.'

"There, however, is an absolute presumption that a transfer is void, if such a transfer had been made during a voyage."

"But suppose that this declaration did not exist," it was stated, "the fact remains that no help should be given to any belligerent by another power, that the purchase would be helping one of the belligerents whose ships are at present of no use to them, but on the contrary are causing expense, which expense would be transferred into a very valuable asset, namely, something like $30,000,000."

That German ships purchased by the United States to be used as a merchant marine would be subject to seizure by England and France, it was stated in diplomatic circles this afternoon.

Both England and France, it was learned, having no objection to an American merchant marine, would protest against the purchase of Austrian or German vessels for commercial purposes by this government. Although it is proposed that the United States pay the $30,000,000 after the war, Great Britain and France will contend that any arrangement between the United States and a foreign shipping company will be equivalent to cash.

MEET SATURDAY CLOSED SEASON

Playground Season Comes to Close with Athletic Meet Saturday at Myrick Park

TWO RECORDS SET AT MEET

Rogstad Sets Mark in Potato Race and Venemon Clips 1-5 Second from Dash Mark

The playground season came to a close on Saturday when the three playgrounds held their annual play carnival and final athletic meet at Myrick park. The athletic activities were held in the forenoon and the play festival in the afternoon.

Two records were broken in the athletic meet, one in the Midget's class and one in the boys' class. Rogstad of Hood street ran the four potato race in 8 1-5 seconds which is 3 1-5 seconds faster time than that made by Latser in 1912. In the 70 yard dash, Venemon of Copeland broke the record held by Bronson of Copeland made in 1912, by running the event in 7 4-5 seconds which is 1-5 seconds faster time than that made by Bronson. Competition was keen in both divisions. Medals of gold, silver and bronze were awarded at the festival in the afternoon to those who took first, second and third places in the events.

Following the program medals were presented to the 32 winners of events at the final meet held in the morning. Also 50 bronze fobs were given to the winners in the five indoor baseball leagues and 30 bronze buttons were awarded to the boys who had passed the Playground and Recreation association badge test.

Credit for the success of the program is due Miss Frances Egbert and Miss Grace Hildreth, who trained the girls for the exercises.

Results by Points
Midget class—Copeland, 17; West avenue, 10; Hood street, 27.

Boys' class—Copeland, 29 1/2; West avenue, 5 1/2; Hood street, 17.

BELGIANS PLAN TO CUT COMMUNICATION

Will Attempt Sortie in Force to Isolate Germans from Base of Supplies

MORE BRITISH LAND AT OSTEND

Believed They Will Cooperate with Belgians in the Flank Attack

ANTWERP, via The Hague, Sept. 1.—The Belgian army is undertaking a series of offensive movements designed to cut the German lines of communication throughout Belgium. The Germans have been compelled to withdraw a great part of their strength from Belgium in order to reinforce the Prussian army in the east, which is being hard pressed by the Russians. There were evidences of great activity in the concentration camps just outside of the first line of fortifications. It is believed that the entire army is about to be utilized in one great offensive attempt. Reports are current here that a large British force has landed at Ostend. It is considered possible here that the fresh British troops will cooperate with the Belgian army.

The Belgian cavalry continued its harrowing tactics and is known definitely to have located the German base at — (the censor eliminated the town). The spirit of the troops is excellent and King Albert constantly inspires them with his presence. Every precaution has been taken to prevent German raid on the city. Great searchlights have been mounted on the fortifications and they constantly comb the sky for Zeppelins. Every light in the city is ordered extinguished at a certain hour. Up in the towers of the cathedral and on the roofs of the tallest buildings, trained artillerymen, with guns especially designed for the purpose, mount guard.

The hatred of everything German is almost unbelievable. The sacking and burning of Louvain, following on the raid over this city has aroused the Belgians and threats of reprisals are heard everywhere.

BABY HAS OPERATION

FIVE YEAR OLD ALPHA ODEGARD OF RUSHFORD IS OPERATED UPON FOR APPENDICITIS

RUSHFORD, Minn., Sept. 1.—(Special).—Mrs. Katherine Johnson went to La Crosse last Friday to see her daughter, Mrs. Ivor Odegard and her children. Mrs. Odegard's little 5 year old daughter Alpha was taken down to the La Crosse Lutheran hospital last Monday to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Odegard and the baby also going down. At this writing the little girl who was operated upon is doing as well as possible, the operation being a peculiarly difficult one on account of other complications which were found.

WAR PROBABLY WILL MAKE BIG CHANGES IN THE MAP OF AFRICA

There can be little doubt but that the war will make big changes in the map of Africa. Germany, France, England and Belgium own practically the entire continent. Should Germany win, she would probably take vast territories away from Belgium and France. Should the allies win, Germany probably would have to give up German Southwest Africa and German East Africa, which, with other German colonies in Africa, cover an area of 930,000 square miles. Belgian Africa covers an area of 800,000 square miles, and French Africa an area of 4,300,000 square miles.

LAKE BOAT BURNS IN CHICAGO HARBOR

City of Chicago Gets to Pier Wrapped in Flames but All Passengers and Crew Escape

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Wrapped in flames and doomed, the excursion steamer City of Chicago, inbound from Benton Harbor, Mich., raved more than a mile with death today. Her 150 passengers, most of them women and children, were taken off by tugs and other excursion boats half an hour before the big boat sank at the mouth of the Chicago river, after being towed to her pier.

Fire broke out in her boiler room as the boat was swinging in from its nightly excursion to Benton Harbor. Dozens of passengers in their night clothes ran to the upper decks. Meanwhile tugs from the life saving station and the sister steamers City of Benton Harbor and City of Grand Rapids, of the Graham and Morton line hurried out into the lake in answer to a distress signal.

Several passengers leaped into the water and swam to the tugs as they approached the steamer, whose sides were fast becoming sheets of flame.

BOMB THREATS ARE MADE IN BUTTE

Union Troubles in Montana Are Comparatively Quiet but Tense Today

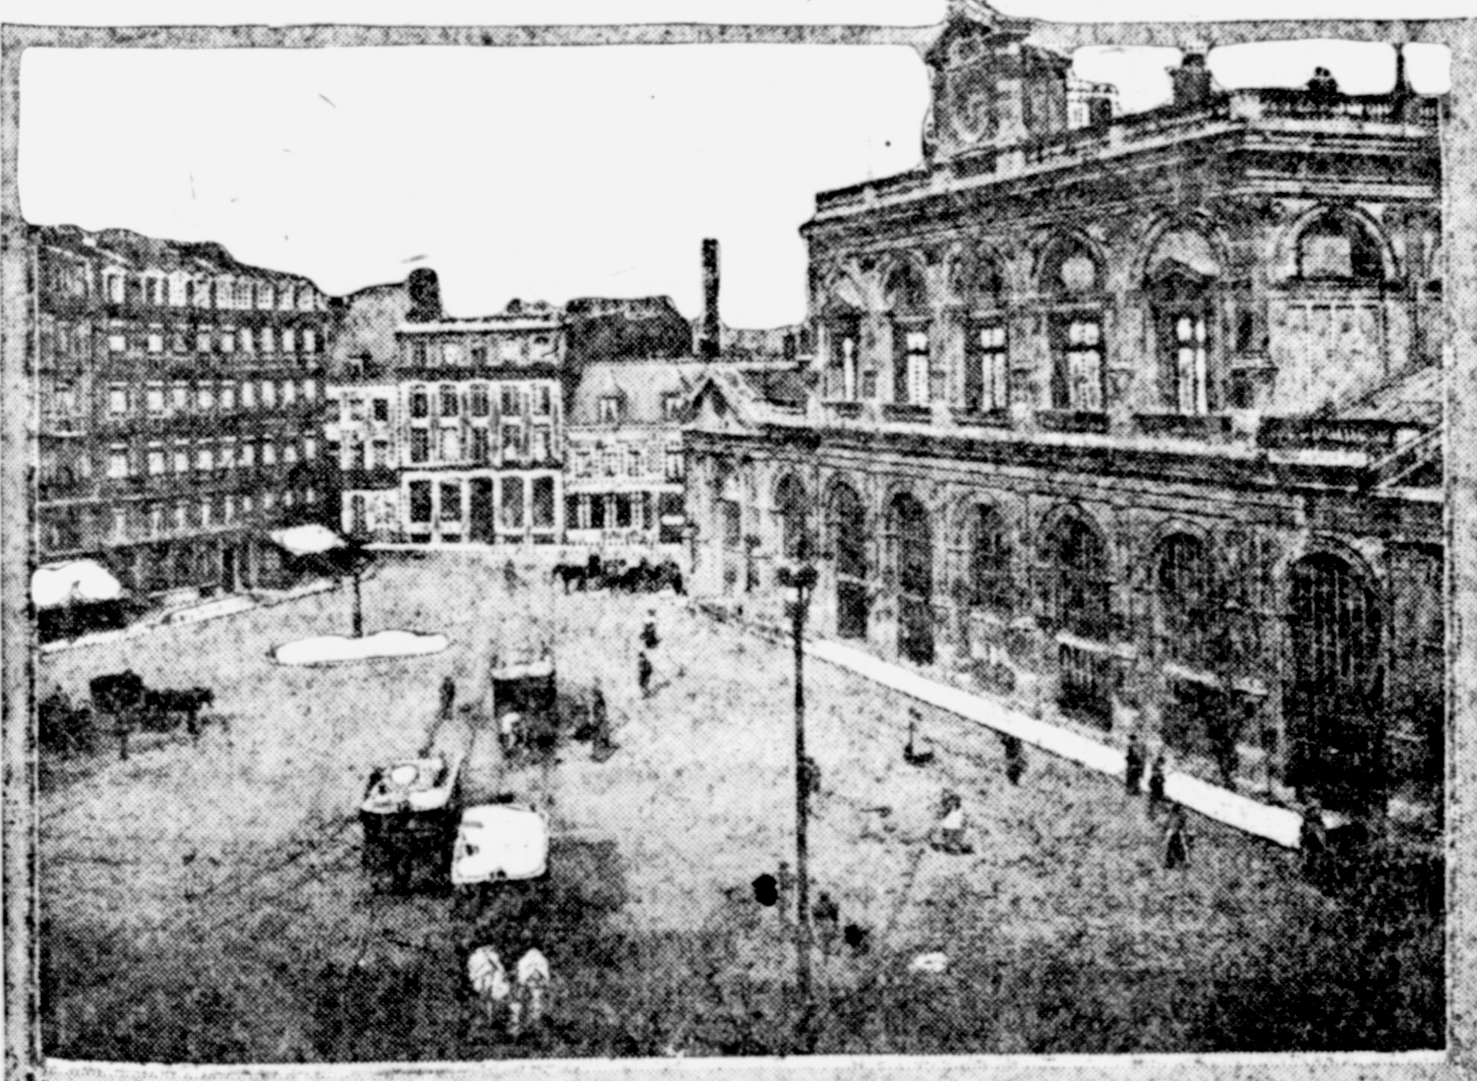

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 1.—The receipt during the night of anonymous threats to dynamite the city water and lighting plants, caused the authorities to post heavily armed guards about both places today.

The situation growing out of the troubles in the metal miners' union in the Butte district was quiet but tense today. State militiamen, mobilized by order of Governor Stewart, have not been sent here and the new union officers declare they have induced the state executive to change his mind.

The Original and Gagnon mines shut down today when a committee from the new union demanded that the miners show the new union credentials instead of cards of the Western Federation of Miners.

Lille Reported Taken by German Armies

Another beautiful city of France has fallen into the hands of the approaching German armies, according to dispatches from Berlin. Lille, which had for protection one of the strongest forts France had built, succumbed to the Germans in a fight of only a few days.

It was one of the forts on the first line of French defense, and was an important link in the chain of forts running from Calais on the English Channel to Belfort in the south of France.

Once the Germans break through this line their dream of marching on to Paris will be so near realization that the Parisians will be in danger of panic.

SINCE the light weight summer silks are delightful to wear and really cool in effect, they will not be over warm at any time and their colors are so varied and so beautiful that they allow almost infinite opportunity for good effects.

WHAT the CHILDREN will WEAR at the OPENING of the SCHOOL SEASON

By MAY MANTON

The combinations of lace ruffled skirts with basques of soft satin have already been mentioned but the variety is so great and the style so well liked that they seem to cry for some further comment, nevertheless. Pretty summerlike effects are obtained by the use of sleeveless basques over lace guimpes and of similar combinations. There is also a tendency toward the Moyen Age effects produced not alone in silks and in satins but also in the lace that is so generally liked.

White Chantilly flouncing is always beautiful. A costume seen yesterday consisted of a Moyen Age basque with kimono sleeves, the flouncing being adroitly handled to make the sleeves and upper portion with the lower portion plain while to its lower edge was attached a deep flounce of the same lace which made the entire skirt with the almost inevitable sash concealing the seam. Whether or not these features will appear as generally in fall fashions as now seems probable can not be positively asserted in view of the conditions but, for summer, the Moyen Age costume in lace, the flounced skirt with the Oriental sash and the combinations of muslins with silk are among the newest of all things.

Sports are especially interesting at this season. Before long, the yachting season will be at its height and women who like to shoot are planning September outfits. For yachting and the like, silk sweaters hand knitted and with wide sashes to match are exceedingly smart over white gowns or skirts. Silk finished linen is a new material for the making of the skirts. It is exceedingly beautiful as well as durable and, in combination with the silk sweaters is ideal not alone for yachting but for general mountain and seaside wear. For the sweaters are used the brightest, most picturesque colors. Orange yellows, rose reds and leaf greens and the like are in great favor.

Shooting calls for quite another sort of outfit. It is likely to be done under conditions that mean cool weather and one of the best liked materials is what is known as moleskin and is really a new cotton velvet of texture and color that fully warrant the name. Smart suits that are eminently practical as well consist of three pieces, knickerbockers, skirt and coat. The coat is made in the modified Norfolk style; that is, the body portion is laid in inverted plaits below a yoke while the peplum or skirt is circular and supplied with big pockets that are really essential to shooting comfort. The plaits being laid in the coat allow the freedom that is necessary when the shot is to be taken yet fall back into straight smart lines when the figure is in repose. The skirts are extremely short and are closed with buttons and button-holes right down the back. If for any reason, the coat seems over-heavy or has the skirt can be converted into a cape and is exceedingly smart and exceedingly becoming to whichever use it is put. It is finished at the upper edge with an elastic band inserted in a casing and this band allows of adjusting it either around the waist or over the shoulders. The knickerbockers are full to cover the knees but tight-fitting in cuff style below, coming within approximately two inches of the high laced boots that should be made of brown water-proof leather with heavy soles and low, flat heels. Small hats either in cap form with a visor to protect the sight or round hats with rolling brims are the preferred ones. As a matter of course, tweed can be used in the same way and is perhaps a little lighter but the moleskin is exceedingly handsome and exceedingly smart and it is claimed that it will stand the necessary hard usage.

Before another letter reaches you, we shall either have news of the French openings or information to the effect that they can not be held and there will probably be something of real interest to tell about the autumn styles. At the moment, materials are a little uncertain and, even with authentic information at hand, it is a little early to arouse any enthusiasm. If the predictions of a hot August are fulfilled, we shall be vastly more interested in muslins than in velvets and wools and we can well afford to wait for the final word as to the fashions of the coming season.

Such readers as must have between seasons costumes will find in the redingote one of the best coats to consider and the polonaise a most satisfactory garment for the street gown that always can be worn during the early autumn with some slight shoulder wrap if the day is cool. The polonaise is the logical outgrowth of prevailing fashions and, unquestionably, will take an important place. It is exceedingly handsome of light weight serge or gabardine over a skirt of velvet or of charmeuse satin, or of plain gabardine over a fancy striped one, of which there is an interesting variety found in the new gabardine. Blue is a pronounced favorite and dark blue gabardine striped with black plush, each stripe approximately one inch wide, makes a handsome contrast with the plain material.

NEW FROCKS for the SCHOOL CHILDREN are ALWAYS in DEMAND with the COMING of AUTUMN

The Illustration Shows Some Pretty Ones that are Easy to Make and Include all the Fashionable Features.

THE school dresses preferably would be made of washable materials for, in these days, children wear piqué, cotton poplin, linen and the like until very cold weather if not throughout the entire season. They are much prettier than wool stuffs and washable frocks are in every way more hygienic than any other sort.

In the group, there is a Norfolk coat, too, and the Norfolk coat makes one of the smartest and prettiest that the school girl can wear. This new one is made with a circular tunic below a plaited body portion and on the tunic are big patch pockets that are exceedingly smart.

Two of the dresses are made with skirts buttoned to the body portions and mothers will be sure to welcome this style because the separate garments are so easy to launder. In the picture, plain and fancy materials are combined but both these frocks can be copied in a variety of ways. The new cottons and linens are very beautiful and they show great variety of stripes and plaids and fancy effects. Incidentally, it may be hinted that such styles are admirably suited for remodelling, for often it happens that the skirt of a dress is good while the body portion is worn and useless.

Down in the right hand corner, there is a long waisted frock that is closed over the shoulders. In the picture, it is made of plaid gingham combined with plain chambray. It is very pretty and childlike in effect and, if the short sleeves seem a little cool for autumn, the longer ones can be used in their stead. It is one of the smartest possible autumn models and one of the easiest to make so that it seems especially worthy of consideration.

Quite at the other extreme of the group, there is a little box plaited frock with body and skirt portions in one. Here it is made of checked linen and is worn with a patent leather belt. It would be pretty made of soft finished piqué, cotton poplin or any similar material, but the piques are perhaps especially attractive this season. White with colored collar, cuffs and belt makes an extremely good effect and a great many mothers like to finish these trimming portions with scalloped edges.

Of course, boys want new costumes as well as girls and the little suit shown here would certainly please them. It gives quite the effect of the Tuxedo coats worn by their older brothers, yet it is really a very simple little costume, the vest portions being stitched to the coat and buttoned right down the center front. Galatea and line suits are admirable for this costume and it can be made of one material throughout or the vest and trousers of plain material while the coat is striped. Since the design combines a perfectly childlike simplicity with a really masculine suggestion, it is an exceptionally good one, and mothers who are constantly on the outlook for something different for little boys will surely like it.

FASHION NOTES OF INTEREST

ALL the sartorial signs point to a most auspicious season. Colors are rich and beautiful and fabrics a delight. Serge, gabardine, silk and wool moiré and broadcloth all are noted among the wools. Poplin, bengaline, plain and moiré, and the soft satins and taffeta appear in the more elaborate costumes. Velvet is to be very largely used in combinations and as trimming, and a great many costumes of the finer sort show combinations of silk and wool, plain and moiré effects, and similar contrasts. Braid will come into its own again, both the flat braid that can be used to bind edges and sewed over seams and soutache applied in moderation. Naturally the long tunics and combinations of materials will make it easy to create new costumes from those of last season, but let a word of warning be added at once. To obtain good results, colors must be harmonious, fabrics must have the effect of being designed one for the other. The bold use of colors of the past two seasons has made us somewhat reckless in our combinations. The one great inherent charm in a really fine Parisian creation is found in just that sense of fitness and feeling for effective contrast. Parisians seem to feel color in a way that only artists can.

During the early winter months a great deal of soft satin will be used in combination with gabardine and serge and moiré bengaline. Exceedingly handsome three-piece costumes are made with skirt and coat of the heavier material, tunic and bodice of the silk. For the chemisettes and collars that make an important and dainty feature, piqué takes first place. Frequently a little hand embroidery is seen within the stitched edges, giving a distinctive touch that nothing else can.

All sorts of flaring and rolling collars are to be worn. Some of the newest are rather close against the neck at the back but leave the throat open at the front.

For the simple tailored costumes, blouses of white organdie and blouses of the pretty striped tub silks are in the lead and it is possible to obtain wonderfully smart effects with just these simple materials. The organdie must be only tucked and puffed or slightly embroidered. The unwritten law decrees that it must not be lace trimmed. Striped and checked silks may be combined with plain, or silk may be combined with piqué. One of the very newest, smartest touches is to be found in the collar and chemisette or waistcoat of white piqué piped with black, in combination with a blouse of striped tub silk showing really bright color, the same bright color reappearing in the few big buttons that effect the closing. We have had the brightly-colored blouses of linen, batiste and the like throughout the summer. For autumn, the pretty striped silks carry out the idea in a somewhat more seasonable manner.

With the coming of cooler weather, velvet and fur trimmings will make the accepted protection against the briskness of an October day. All sorts of odd, loose little coats to be worn over silk gowns are made of velvet and the combination is just the ideal one for the first cool days. Soft-finished satins are exceedingly beautiful in such combinations and moiré with velvet makes an exceedingly rich and handsome effect.

Long tunics may fairly be said to reign supreme but these tunics are some circular, some box-plaited, some flat plaited, some straight and gathered; consequently, they are adapted to every known material.

How to Make the New Tunic Skirt

By MAY MANTON

UNQUESTIONABLY the tunic is the feature of the autumn season. This skirt is made with a two-piece foundation and with a tunic that can be treated in two entirely different ways. In the illustration, the whole skirt is made of gabardine, but the autumn will see a great many costumes of two materials and an exceedingly handsome as well as fashionable effect can be obtained by using woven material that will fray readily a wider seam will be needed. Baste on the traced line and the perfect contour will be preserved.

To make the skirt, close the seams, leaving an opening at the left side above the notches. Under-face the front edge of the opening and finish back with an extension underlap. Take up the darts in the back of the skirt only, bringing the perforations together.

Close the portions of the tunic, leaving an opening at the left seam above the notches and finish as directed for the skirt. If you like the open edges, cut the tunic through at the center front and turn the edges under on the lines of perforations. Then finish the lower edge. If the closed tunic is to be used, finish the lower edge in the way best adapted to the material. Gather the tunic at the upper edge between the double crosses and arrange it over the skirt with the center backs, seams and edges of the plackets exactly together, with the front edges of the open tunic two inches within the center of the skirt or the center of the closed tunic exactly at the center of the skirt. Arrange both skirt and tunic over webbing or belting one and one-half inches wide, and close invisibly.

For the natural waistline, mark the double crosses in the tunic below the perforations at the upper edge; then cut all portions of the pattern off on the perforations nearest the upper edges and proceed exactly as directed, but take up the darts in the front as well as in the back of the skirt. Join both the skirt and the tunic to the belt with the center backs together, the center fronts at the large perforation in the belt, and cut the left side of the belt off at the edge of the opening.

For the skirt will be needed 3½ yards of material 27, 2½ yards 44, 2½ yards 50 inches wide, and for the tunic 3½ yards 27, 2½ yards 44, 50 inches wide.

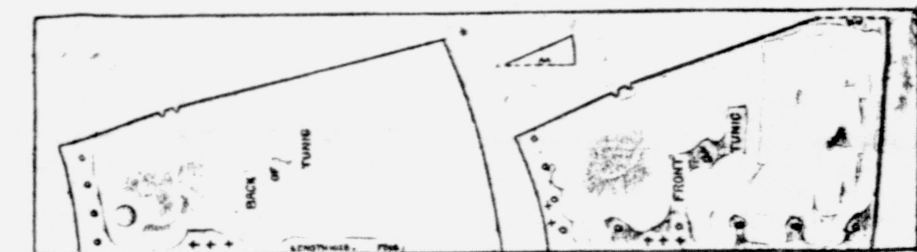

If remodeling is in process and there is already a two-piece skirt on hand, the tunic can be adjusted over that quite as well as the one in the pattern and it is therefore of great value at this season when so many costumes

one material for the skirt and another for the tunic, as taffeta over gabardine, soft satin over moiré, plain material over striped. With the open tunic the entire skirt should be of one material, but with the closed tunic it is wiser to reduce both the weight of the skirt and the cost by using lining material for the skirt and facing it to a sufficient depth above the edge of the tunic.

In the upper diagram are shown the two portions of the skirt and the belt, in the lower, the two portions of the tunic; all laid on material 44 inches wide folded lengthwise. Note that in the case of the tunic there is a tiny little section separate from the main portion of the front. This section must be cut separately and sewed to the side edges because the material is not wide enough to cut the entire tunic in one piece, but when the seams are well stitched and carefully pressed they will not be noticed. If you use narrower material, it will be necessary to make larger pieces of this sort.

This skirt can be made with either a high or a natural waistline, but we will first consider the high waistline shown in the illustration.

First, smooth out the different pieces and pin them carefully into place, as indicated, with the edges marked by the triple crosses on the fold. The group of three large perforations indicates the front of the skirt and it is important to bear this in mind since the two pieces are much alike.

Mark all around the outside edges with a tracing wheel or tailor's chalk and mark the various notches and perforations. Mark through to the other side with tailor's tacks. Then cut your material as far beyond the traced outline as is necessary to make a good seam. For broadcloth or other closely woven material a narrow seam will suffice, but if you are using loosely are to be put into condition for cool weather use. Almost every woman has a blue serge suit. The addition of a tunic of black taffeta or black moiré bengaline with coat trimming of the same would make a new costume at very little cost.

Charmeuse satin will be much used in combination with wool materials, too, and is always beautiful. There are most interesting striped and fancy materials that can be combined with any plain one so long as the colors are harmonious. Altogether, this fall offers a very exceptional opportunity for "making new silk from old sack." Black is effective in contrast with other colors as well as blue. It is, of course, easier to effect a contrast than to match materials. New silk can be put with wool material that has seen service with far better success than ever results from an attempt to match materials exactly. All the poplin weaves are fashionable and faille has returned to favor.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Moderate selling caused a decline of 1-4 to 1 cent in wheat at the start today, and following a brief rally prices continued to slump. Noon found the market from 1-3-8 to 2 cents under last night's close. Liverpool failed to send any quotations and the trade, as naturally conservative because it lacked news of a decisive character.

Corn started a trifle lower, moved upward and then ceased off again 1-2 to 3-4 below last night's closing figures.

Dats acted in the same manner as the other grains. The market was easier at the start and a slight rally and then eased off again.

Moderate selling in provisions brought lower prices in spite of higher prices at the Stock Yards.

Buying was resumed in all grain pits in the afternoon, wheat profiting most with advances of 1-4 to 3-4c. Corn and oats futures gained a shade to 1-4c. Provisions continued to ease off until the close.

Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 1.—History
repeated itself on the Casino
courts on Monday when Maurice E.
McLoughlin of San Francisco and

R. Norris Williams II of Philadelphia won their places in the finals
of the allcomers' tournament for the national singles lawn tennis championship.
McLoughlin won his place in the finals by defeating former champion William J. Clothier of Philadelphia in straight sets, 6-4 6-4 6-3. Williams came through with a similar victory over Elia Fotrell
of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.
Jacques Fournier—the White Sox
French reservist—drove out two home runs off Walter Johnson when
that worthy replaced Shaw in the box in the seventh for the Senators
and tried to save the game.

RUSHFORD DEFEATS PRESTON AS MOPPY WHIFFS SIXTEEN

RUSHFORD, Minn., Sept. 1.— (Special).—Rushford Sunday afternoon defeated Preston at Preston by the score of 12 to 1. Fisher, an Austin, Minn., twirler, was knocked out of the box and Danielson went in.
Moppy Anderson, throwing for Rushing the Pirates to a one-one tie in eleven innings being the cause.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder
Irritation or Backache

The American men and women
must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much
and all of our food is rich. Our blood
is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken
from over work, become sluggish;
the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder
weakness and a general decline in health.
When your kidneys feel like lumps
of lead; your back hurts or the urine
is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer
with sick headache or dizzy, nervous
spells, acid stomach, or you have
rheumatism when the weather is bad,
get from your pharmacist about four
ounces of Jad Salts; take a table-
spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined
with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is
a source of irritation, thus ending
bladder disorders.
Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent
lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good
kidney flushing any time. Chas. A.
Beyschlag, druggist, 503 Main street.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
CINCINNATI, Sept. 1.—The Cubs
won from Cincinnati, 4 to 2 yesterday, chiefly through their opponent's misplays. Two Chicago runs were scored in the seventh
without the semblance of a hit

THE GOOD JUDGE GETS A TIP FROM THE COUNTRY DOCTOR

MEN are learning the truth about chewing tobacco.
"Right-Cut" is the Real Tobacco Chew.
A clean, small chew satisfies you.
Leaves a clean after-taste in the mouth
—not the thick, foggy taste that the ordinary chew forces on a man.
That's one of the reasons why men are so
eager to tell their friends about "Right-Cut."
Made of rich, sappy tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away.
Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.
It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.
One small chew takes the place of two big
chews of the old kind.
